

You know that improving your company's information system (IS) is a big challenge. It's a job that is strategically important for competing in your markets today—and even more so tomorrow.

When starting your IS improvement effort, a careful needs analysis is vital for a strong take off. Whether this analysis uncovers a need for an enterprise-wide system or a single-purpose custom tool, you may need some help.

Since 1989, Engleman Associates, Inc. has supported local companies in making the leap from IS need to IS reality. We combine business acumen and software savvy—for guaranteed results—to help you land successfully.

We've distilled our extensive software development experience into an IS Planning Kit.
